The staffing industry has played a critical role as the U.S. and Canadian economies have begun rebuilding following the recent recession. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, during the past 12 months, an average of 93,000 new jobs have been created each month in the U.S.¹ It is estimated that more than a quarter of those jobs have been temporary positions provided by staffing and recruiting firms. The staffing industry is helping lead the way to renewed economic vitality, and more and more businesses of all sizes are turning to staffing firms to help them build a flexible and talented workforce.

The Best of Staffing™ Program

Inavero's Best of Staffing program, presented by CareerBuilder, is designed to recognize staffing firms who provide exceptional levels of service to their clients. More than 26,000 clients of North American staffing firms rated their satisfaction with their staffing firm relationship. When the dust settled, less than one percent of all staffing firms have been named to the list. The Best of Staffing award is the only one of its kind and the largest client satisfaction survey for the staffing industry in North America.

"They consistently provide value added services and are always responsive to our needs; oftentimes "free" advice, webinars, etc."
 NW Construction Company

The Criteria

To qualify, participating staffing and recruiting firms are required to survey all of their most recent clients, utilizing Inavero's three-question survey, asking them to rate their satisfaction with the firm. A minimum response rate of 20 percent (with at least 15 responses) or 500 responses was required to ensure the study's validity. The Net Promoter Score® methodology, made famous by author and former Bain consultant, Fred Reichheld, was used as the basis for gauging client satisfaction.

"[Staffing Firm] understands the culture of my company and only presents well screened, well matched, qualified candidates."

Clients' needs and expectations are constantly evolving, and staffing firms face an environment where the service they provide must also continue to progress and improve. Inavero's vision with Best of Staffing is to continue to raise the bar on client service in the staffing space, and identify top performers each year who have truly proven their commitment to progress and improvement.

Although the staffing industry's Net Promoter Score® dropped to just 33% in the past year², Best of Staffing's foundation is built on improvement and exceptional service – being very good is simply not enough to earn recognition. Therefore, in 2011, staffing firms were required to attain a 55% Net Promoter Score® from their clients, five percentage points higher than the mark set by Inavero in 2010.

The Results

The average Best of Staffing winner achieved a Net Promoter Score® of 69 percent, more than twice the staffing industry score. Additionally, 74 percent of their clients rate them a 9 or 10 (compared to only 47 percent for the industry overall). Firms on the list who scored 80 percent or higher Net Promoter Score® found themselves in the 90th percentile of all Best of Staffing award winners. Staffing firms who made the list were consistently given high marks for their ability to partner with their clients, their responsiveness, and their extensive knowledge of their clients' industry and organizational needs.

What it All Means

Research conducted by Inavero and CareerBuilder show that clients select staffing firms based on service reputation and quality of talent provided. With more than 6,000 staffing firms in the United States alone, determining the best providers can be daunting. The Best of Staffing list identifies the industry's elite players in delivering exceptional client satisfaction, allowing both clients and talent to select staffing firms with confidence. Nearly all staffing firms claim to have extraordinary client service, but the 2011 Best of Staffing Client winners have proven it.
